

Better dialysis. New study: In a one-year study of 224 kidney disease patients, those who received eight hours of dialysis overnight (while sleeping) had a 78% lower death rate than those who received conventional dialysis (four hours, three days weekly). Theory: Overnight dialysis patients are less likely to experience blood pressure drops, which can lead to complications.

Ercan Ok, MD, professor of internal medicine and nephrology, Ege University Hospital, Izmir, Turkey.